EDITORIAL

By Cris Leibner
GF Editor

Once again we thank the organizers, sponsors, and participants for a very successful annual conference, the 20th for Caretakers of the Environment International. This year's was of course in beautiful Poland. I have included in this issue a few highlights of some of the many memorable events experienced as a result of attending CEI 2006, Poland.

The 2007 conference will be in Hong Kong July 7-14, 2007. The theme is "How to Live in Harmony with the Environment through Active Participation". The organizers have done an impressive job of getting things moving so quickly and providing all those interested with an excellent website www.cei2007.org early enough for people to make plans well in advance. The first article in this issue gives information about Hong Kong, tentative conference schedule, travel information, registration procedures, and more. I have included a registration page that can be sent by post in case you know someone who does not have access to the internet. They could complete the form and then be pre-registered and would get more information. So, if you know who might be interested but does not have internet, please send it along to them.

In an effort to improve communications among Caretakers, a new Council was formed last July. The idea is to have a group of people representing various regions of the world who would serve as contacts to facilitate communication between and among Caretaker branches. I have included the names of the council here:

Hong Kong is the Host of the 21st Caretakers of the Environment International Annual Conference July 7 to July 14, 2007

The organizers for CEI 2007 in Hong Kong have done a great deal of work in a very short time to compile and present the makings of what looks to be a very exciting opportunity for teachers and students. This article will give you an overview of plans for the upcoming conference. The website www.cei2007.org will provide more detailed information especially for projects and registration. There is an opportunity to save some money by using the "Early Bird" registration option. Conference Dates: July 7 to July 14, 2007

Conference Theme: "How to Live in Harmony with the Environment through Active Participation" The organizers intend to encourage our youths to explore how to live in harmony with our natural, social, cultural, and economic environments. They plan to emphasize "active participation". They hope that our youth will not just think or talk about harmony and environment issues, but take positive action to promote, to research, and to serve.

Conference Language: The official language of the Conference will be English. All documents, media items and actual presentations will be in English. The school does not have the resources to provide translation services. The school does have ample space and audio visual equipment for effective presentations and discussions.

The Host: Queen Elizabeth School Old Students' Association Secondary School (hereinafter referred to as "the school") is the host. The school was established in 1996 and has enjoyed recognition for its explicit positive values, its curricular innovations, its pedagogical approaches, its community services, emphasis in professional development, its efforts in sustainable development (SD) and its achievements in SD education. It has served as an officially recognized Professional Sharing Centre for Hong Kong teachers. Students have many opportunities to get involved in many SD related activities. The school has had a delegation attend each of the six past CEI annual conferences.

The school is located in Tin Shui Wai, a new town in the north-western part of Hong Kong and has a population of about 300,000. The area offers a rich diversity of environments for delegates to experience during the conference; a 61 hectare Hong Kong Wetland Park, the Ping Shan Heritage Trail, traditional Chinese villages, examples of modern town planning and urban development, world famous Mai Po marshes, and efficient transportation systems linking all parts of Hong Kong.

Target Participants: We hope to receive applications for registration from:

(a) teams/groups of secondary school (high school) students from different countries and regions of the world (each team/group must be accompanied by at least one adult who agrees to take responsibility for and charge of the group);
(b) teachers and teacher-trainees;
(c) other secondary school (high school) personnel (e.g. managers, parents); and
(d) other adults in the field of secondary (high school) education or sustainable development. Each team will carry out a project before the conference and prepare a report to present summarizing the project. See the website www.cei2007.org for more information on this important piece. Click on the "Projects" tab.

Registration: Registration is a three step process:
Stage 1- To show your interest in joining the CEI 2007 conference, please fill in the Participation Form, (found at www.cei2007.org registration tab) attach your project description or abstract and e-mail to info@cei2007.org This form just shows your interest in attending and is not confirmed until your project description or abstract is received.

Stage 2- After your project description or abstract has been received, you will get a form to fill out details about your project.

Stage 3- Confirmation of your registration with another form to give the date, time (military) flight number, etc. about your arrival and departure.

If you are not able to register on line, we have included a registration form with address for sending by postal means (see next page)

Registration Fees:

- (a) International "early bird" (before 1 March, 2007) USD225 or Euro175 or HKD1700 (double), single room surcharge USD180 or Euro140 or HKD1400.
- (b) International "regular" (on or after 1 March, 2007) USD275 or Euro 215 or HKD2100 (double), single room surcharge USD180 or Euro140 or HKD1400.

For local participants from the area, please see the website www.cei2007.org using the "Registration" tab for fees.

Conference Schedule: We have included a tentative program schedule of activities to provide the reader with a clearer idea of what to expect and what the organizers hope to achieve. The partitions are only tentative and approximate. This timetable will continually be revised, as resources dictate, as we get closer to the time of the conference.

Some Highlights of the 20th Annual CEI Conference
"Youth for Sustainable Development"
Ustron-Katowice Silesia Poland 1-7 July 2006
By Cris Leibner

The conference organization was headquartered in Katowice, the administrative center of Silesia. Conference attendees stayed in Ustron, a picturesque spa town located in the Beskidy Mountains, in the valley of Poland's main river Vistula, which rises near Ustron. They were accommodated in the Regional Forest Ecological Education Center "Lesnik", as well as two additional holiday resorts nearby.

The theme of this meeting reflected the initiative set forth by the UNESCO announcement of the worldwide Decade of Education for Sustainable Development. The main idea is that "progress" left unchecked can lead to many negative impacts on the environment and society. Through proper education, youth can become aware that a need for balance is required for sustainability.

One of the most moving experiences provided by any of the twenty CEI annual meetings came in Poland, the opportunity to visit Auschwitz. This was an optional event, but most of the delegates elected to go. The following are two reflection pieces done by students about their visit.

"The one who does not remember history is bound to live through it again."

We think that this sentence has a sense. By seeing Auschwitz we got an image of all the things we've learned in history class. By preserving this camp, the past will not be forgotten. It makes us think and we hope that people will learn from these terrible things. The thing that struck us most is the place where they shot people: "the wall of death" and the fact that the camp leaders kept the belongings of the people that came to Auschwitz, especially the artificial legs and the human hair. We can now imagine a little bit what kind of horrible life the people in the camp must have had. We're hoping that this will never happen again."

Anne, Yanneke, Anauk
from The Netherlands

"We think that visiting Auschwitz was a very important experience, both for Poles and foreigners, because we had a chance to get to know a crime that affected so many people. In those times in concentration camps on Polish lands people from all the Europe, mostly Jews and Poles, suffered and died. In Auschwitz-Birkenau 2-4 million people all together died in cruel ways. Those who survived will never forget the pain. For us, Poles, it's significant that after many years the German nation had finally confessed to the crimes they've committed during World War II. Now as the world knows the truth, people don't blame Poland for those acts. Thanks to such places like Auschwitz-Birkenau we do remember the history therefore we can be aware of mistakes of the past and must do everything not to make them again."

Oliwia from Poland

In the short space of the next two pages, you can see some of the highlights to get some impressions of the great conference the host country, Poland, provided. An excellent Post Conference Book can be viewed at www.cei2006.org for more details.

UDISHA Commemorates the World Day for Prevention of Child Abuse as Coalition Partner of Women's World Summit Foundation
By Rakesh Gaur, President of UDISHA
Delhi, India

In its third year of coalition with Women's World Summit Foundation, Geneva for marking World Day for Prevention of Child Abuse, UDISHA, Society for Education, Employment and Sustainable Development, New Delhi, India organized programs in collaboration with Ganga Ram Moti Ram Sewa Sansthan. The programs were organized on 19th November, 2005 at Moti Ram Aako Devi Vidya Mandir, Jalmana (Karnal), Haryana. The events organized by UDISHA this year have enabled the volunteers of UDISHA to reach out to the children of another state and have provided an opportunity to rural children to interact with the psychologists and academicians coming from the urban area and capital of the country.

On 19th November, around 1000 students of Moti Ram Aako Devi Vidya Mandir and other schools of the district participated in a Rally (Walk) in the village to arouse awareness about child abuse, respect of the elders, environment and rural development. The students displayed placards and banners with slogans about these social evils and developmental issues. Around 8000 leaflets with slogans on different issues were distributed amongst the villagers.

An "On the spot poster painting competition" for students of up to VIII standard (Middle Standard) from ten different schools in the District was organized at Moti Ram Aako Devi Vidya Mandir as a prelude to the events on 19th November. The topics assigned to the children amongst others were child abuse, crime against women and social responsibilities. More than 200 children participated in the competition and expressed their feelings, emotions, perception and dreams in colorful posters.

Most of the children belonged to rural background and had very little knowledge about child abuse and crimes against women. These children are, therefore, most vulnerable to child abuse, which they confront but cannot confide in their parents, siblings or friends. It was also observed by the panel of judges that the children restricted themselves to making posters on lack of educational facilities for girls due to discriminatory attitude towards the girls and boys, of the parents, exploitation of children for work, making them beg for livelihood and child labor. Keeping this aspect in mind, an Elocution contest was also organized on 19th November wherein 24 students from ten different schools expressed their views. The panel of judges for this contest was also of the opinion that none of the students could speak on child abuse properly. Most of the students chose one topic, i.e., the bad effect of television on the children. They obliquely mentioned about the vulgar programs being shown on the television but did not have any idea as to how it could prompt someone to indulge in sexual child abuse.

It was for these reasons eminent psychologists and academicians conducted a counseling session for students and their parents about child abuse in simple language and cautioned them to beware of unknown persons. The other speakers emphasized upon the need for educating the girl children so that they can become independent and are not subject to physical, emotional or sexual abuse.

The top three best entries in Poster Painting Competition and Elocution Contest in each group were awarded and all the participating children were given commendation certificates. The events organized by UDISHA have enabled the volunteers to reach out to the children of another state and have provided an opportunity to rural children to interact with the psychologists and academicians coming from the urban area and capital of the country.

Salman Khan Convicted!By Abhishek DuttSecretary CEI India17th February, 2006

Film star Salman Khan, arrested in 1998 for hunting blackbuck and chinkara near Jodhpur, was sentenced to one year imprisonment. Another actor, who was allegedly part of the hunting party, has been acquitted. Khan and several other actors were arrested for hunting while on location for a film. He now had a month to file an appeal.

Khan's hunting party was discovered when members of the local Bishnoi community complained to the Forest Department that a group of people had been illegally hunting in their area.

During the Forest Department's investigations into the blackbuck case, Khan's driver Harish Dulani revealed that the actors had made several hunting trips and earlier killed chinkara. The Forest Department then filed cases in the local police station. It is one of these cases that Khan has been convicted of.

The Wildlife Protection Society of India (WPSI), which has been following the case since its inception, would like to congratulate the Forest and Police Departments, and the entire prosecution team, which managed to secure a conviction despite the fact that several witnesses turned hostile or mysteriously disappeared.

The police had recovered a revolver and a rifle from the actor after his arrest in the hunting case. The license of the arms had expired, which led to the registration of a police case under the Arms Act against him.

Salman Khan, Saif Ali Khan, Sonali Bendre, Tabu and Neelam were arrested in Jodhpur two years back for hunting protected wild animals and are now facing criminal charges under the Wildlife Protection Act in local courts.

Although the others were released on bail immediately, Salman Khan remained in custody for about a week, before getting bail in various cases.

Three charge-sheets, under the Wildlife Protection Act, had been filed against Salman Khan and others in lower courts over the last two years.

The fourth, filed on Monday, relates to the Arms Act. It took two years for the Luni police to complete investigations, for which the forensic science laboratory of the police in Jaipur evaluated the arms and held that they were powerful enough to kill animals.

Salman Khan was not present in court when the charge-sheet was filed against him. His counsel Hastimal Saraswat told Additional Judicial Magistrate Ajay Singh that since he had been granted permanent leave from attending court hearings in three other cases, he should also be permitted to get leave from personal attendance in this case too. The request was granted by the magistrate, who fixed December 2 for arguments on the charges.

The prosecution has listed 19 witnesses in the charge-sheet, in support of its case. The arms seized from Salman Khan were released by the court early this year.

The blackbuck above and the chinkara below are protected by the Wildlife Protection Society of India (WPSI)
